TO ADVERTISERS.

PUBLIC EXPENDITURE

bers must endeavor in some way to make the annual exhibition more worthy of the attention of agriculturists, and the Committee for the ensuing year must do their utmost to render the next show a complete success, or the Society which ought to be and promised fair to be first class, will sink into insignifi-

The Select Committee of the House of Assembly on Public Accounts has work before it which will entail no small amount of labor upon its members. It is referred to that committee to report on public expenditure, and also to enquire into the state of the Probate Court, in addition to its other duties. It is very desirable that the public should from time to time have such information as to what the state of expenditure is, and how the money is applied, as can be elicited by a committee of the House of Assembly. Tax-payers under a constitutional government have seldom reason to complain of the misapplication of the funds which they contribute for the support of the state, but occasions do arise at intervals which cause an outery against the expenditure of individual departments, and it is for the purpose of guarding against any evil of this kind that the representatives of the people are invested with the power of making inquiries into the conduct of the different branches of the executive gov-

In all countries these inquiries are most desirable, but in young countries pre-eminently so. In prosecuting their enquiries committees are likely to detect such errors as may exist in the system under which the different departments are carried on, and are enabled to suggest reforms and improvements tending to produce a more perfect system. The committee has direct power to call for accounts, papers, and returns relating to the treasury, the postoffice, and finance and general or local matters, and indirectly through the Governor as representative of Her Majesty for returns connected with the civil government; under the former head may be included all grants for roads, for the improvement of the harbor, and for public works generally. And it will be the duty of the committee to inquire in point of fact whether the executive officers have properly performed their duty in disthe public funds, and further to show where the public expen-diture has exceeded the votes. The Post office, and the Public-Works Department, as having the control of the roads, will require the particular attention of the committee, account of their excessive draft upon the public funds. There is a general outery for improvement in our postal communications and country roads, and it it is very desirable that the committee should examine thoroughly into the cause of the great expenses incurred in these two departments as com pared with the improvements effected by them in the last financial year. We have no sire to see either of these departments unduly restricted in their expenditure -- what is required of them cannot be effected without proper funds, and we shall be glad to see the House passing large votes for their support, under the suggestion of the presen committee as to the measures to be adopted for the due regulation and control of their expenditure. There is no single department that will be the worse for a searching inves tigation into its expenditure, and no public officer, who is properly discharging his duty, can cavil at being called upon to make those returns which will inform the public how much of their money has been expended under his supervision. The public have a right to urge upon their representatives the ke-ping of the public expenditure within due bounds, and the members of the House of Assembly would be wanting in their duty

THE AGRICULTURAL SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the Agricult al and Horticultural Society came off yesterday on the grounds selected for ion across James Bay. The weather was fortunately propitious and a large number of visitors, including many ladies, thronged to the spot; the show however we are sorry to state, was not so successful as was anticipated, being very much inferior to stock was very meagre, and the field and garden products, although excellent in quality, were deficient in quantity and variety, and appeared to rather poor advantage in the small tent under which, doubtless owing to the danger of wet weather, it was deem fit to place them. - Many of the articles exhibited however were very superior and attracted the favorable notice of every one. Among these we may mention the two hives of Italian bees sent by Chas. Street, Esq.; they are the only bees of the kind in the colony,
